Most people believe that anger is a negative emotion from which no good can come. This Trainer-Specialist certification program based on the revised editions of "What's Good About Anger?" and the Trainer's manual provides a fresh perspective on anger and how anger—which is part of the human experience—can be put to work for good. Outcome studies on the Anger Management Institute groups demonstrate that the programs are 'evidence-based'. We will look at trauma, and how experiencing a crisis can trigger anger and its expression. Clinicians can assist their clients with understanding the effects of a trauma on their psychological and physical functioning and teach client's skills that will mitigate the expression of inappropriate anger.
